

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This report is co-authored by David P. Cavanagh, Ph.D., Sandra L. Putnam, Ph.D., and Ian R.H. Rockett, Ph.D., MPH of the Community Health Research Group, The University of Tennessee, Knoxville. Much appreciated is the hard work and dedication of James A. Malia, Ph.D., Michelle Blackwell, John Simpson, Renee Johnson, Tanya Ergh, Suzanne Streagle and other CHRG staff whose contributions were critical to the success of this project. Thanks are also due for the generosity of the sheriffs and other law enforcement officers whose cooperation in enabling and facilitating data collection made this study possible, including Dennis Dowd, Director, Shelby County Jail; Kenneth A. Turner, Judge, Juvenile Court of Memphis and Shelby County; Ronnie Clark, Juvenile Court of Memphis and Shelby County; Robert E. Kirchner, Jr., Chief of Police, Metropolitan Police Department, Nashville; Sergeant Pardue, Site Supervisor, Metropolitan Police Department, Nashville; Eric Knowles, Director, Davidson County Juvenile Detention Facility, Nashville; Don Aaron, Public Information Manager, Metropolitan Police Department, Nashville; Rodney Morris, Chief of Security, Davidson County Juvenile Detention Facility; Jackie Sawyers, Assistant Director, Davidson County Juvenile Detention Facility; Jim Wells, Contract Manager, Corrections Corporation of America, Davidson County Juvenile Detention Center, Nashville; Martha Booker, Assistant Warden, Corrections Corporation of America, Davidson County Juvenile Detention Center, Nashville; Tim Hutchison, Sheriff, Knox County Sheriff's Department, Knoxville; Rodney Bivens, Captain, Corrections Division, Knox County Sheriff's Department; Kenneth Quindry, Chief of Operations (Head Jailer) Knox County Jail; Richard Bean, Director, East Tennessee Regional Juvenile Service Center, Knoxville; Carey E. Garrett, Judge, Knox County Juvenile Court. Larry Gibney, Chief Probation Officer, Knox County Court; Patti Hall, Executive Director and Philip Young, Detoxification Center for Public Inebriates (DRI), Knoxville; Jerry Abston, Sheriff, Putnam County; Eddie Farris, Jail Administrator, Putnam County; Dan Holmes, Director, Putnam County Juvenile Detention Facility; Doug Quarles, Sheriff, Jefferson County Jail; J. D. Patterson, Jail Administrator, Jefferson County Jail.

Project conception and implementation benefited from the counsel of Richard C. Stephens, Ph.D. and Heather K. Huff, M.A. of The University of Akron, Ohio, and Robert W. Oldendick, Ph.D. of The University of South Carolina. Crucial for electronic data compilation were the technical contributions of Thomas Gray and Michael Wagner, Ph.D., of the Center for Substance Abuse Research (CESAR) at The University of Maryland.

This report is dedicated to Dr. Stephanie Perry, Rick Bradley and other staff of the Bureau of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services, Tennessee Department of Health, for their unflagging interest and commitment to this project.